

Gov. Matheson opposes tax rebate

By BILL HICKMAN
Asst. News Editor

Gov. James H. Matheson, Jr. delivered his budget address today, urging legislators to postpone their $40 million tax rebate and increase the gasoline and franchise taxes.

Matheson, in proposing a $1.7 billion budget, called for a 3-cent increase in the gasoline tax and a doubling of vehicle registration and license fees.

He increases would create $27 million in revenues that Matheson said are needed to bolster the Transportation Department budget he laid out "austere to the point of not reserving critical highway needs."

He also recommended doubling severance tax on oil, natural gas, metals, and extending the existing tax levy to coal and other minerals. That increase is expected to generate $21 million.

The governor proposed using one-third of the severance tax revenues to fund a capital construction account which would "provide ongoing and increasing funds for the state's capital needs."

He suggested using the coal severance tax to help local governments with costs associated with coal mineral development.

He also proposed that the governor's education budget, though calling for pay raises for teachers, remained the same in contributions to school building needs called for cuts in some school programs.

While simply cannot afford the $2 billion worth of new construction needs," Matheson said, suggested exploring alternatives the public school system which would use the schools more effectively, including year-round schools and a tax credit to parents whose children attend private schools.

In elementary education, Matheson recommended cutting elementary music, elementary school guidance and extended year, day and summer programs.

In higher education he suggested eliminating the general fund subsidy for continuing education and increasing tuitions to completely cover costs.

To prepare for the future and meet revenue shortfalls, Matheson wants to establish a revenue stabilization fund. He said the surplus revenue at the end of the fiscal year should be put in the fund and used when shortages occur.

He pointed to the shortages the state has faced the past two years and said, "In the face of continuing economic uncertainty, the establishment of such a fund is absolutely necessary."

Matheson discussed the State Tax Commission's order to index all property assessments to 20 percent of the 1975 fair market value. He said equalizing the assessment would raise $34 million that would "help balance the state's budget."

U.S. to resume Salvadoran aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration will announce today a resumption of the U.S. military aid to El Salvador that was suspended five weeks ago, informed sources said Tuesday night.

More than 500 persons have been reported killed in the Central American nation in the past four days after leftist forces launched what they called an "all-out offensive" to overthrow the ruling civilian-military junta.

On Dec. 5, the administration halted military and economic aid to El Salvador after the slaying of four American nuns in a San Salvador hotel.

The $20 million economic assistance program was resumed Dec. 17, but the military aid remained suspended pending progress in the investigation of the murders of the women and a reduction in politically motivated violence.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said a contributing factor in the decision to restore the $5 million in military aid was the beginning of an offensive by leftist forces last weekend.

One of the avowed aims of the guerrillas has been to create an "irreversible" situation before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office next week.

El Salvador's new civilian president, Jose Napoleon Duarte, has called the offensive a failure. Duarte, a Christian Democrat, became president last month during a major restructuring of the government.

The U.S. aid program reportedly will include the supplying of six US helicopters and several million dollars worth of equipment. Six U.S. military advisers also will be sent to El Salvador.

Some U.S. officials were known to be reluctant to resume aid on grounds that they believe Salvadoran authorities are not seriously investigating the deaths of the four American women.

The decision to resume aid was personally approved by President Carter after a series of top level meetings in recent days involving Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Defense Secretary Harold Brown, the sources said.

According to coaches

Most athletes want education

Editor's note: NCAA academic requirements are letting athletes go to BYU coaches. NCAA allows athletes to attend schools while maintaining only a C minus or better grade point average, thus preventing them from obtaining a meaningful education. How educational process for athletes be improved is the topic of this part of a three-part series on academics and athletics.

By JERRY PEAKED
Universe Painter Editor

athletes, schools are doing anything to let them go through four or five years of college without graduating, head football coach Lavell Edwards said.

He said to improve the current system of educating college athletes increasing the percentage of athletes who graduate is a major concern of the NCAA rule makers.

WAC and NCAA rules state that athletes "must be making normal progress leading to a recognized degree." When asked what "normal progress" meant, Nardy Jensen, information director, said it is really defined and "we usually set it up to the schools to take of it."

most (players) can handle both football and basketball at the same time. We get me who don't and the most frustrating job I have — trying to convince me of our players to take their responsibilities toward academics." — Lavell Edwards.

BYU offensive line coach Mel Ol said "normal progress" is defined "making progress in a major and upper-division classes. Something like taking freshman-level classes all four years in college, but we let them to their advisement center for the main reason, national, that athletes do not graduate."

the WAC does have grade standards athletes must abide by to be eligible. Incoming freshmen required by the WAC to have a grade point average their first semester and by their senior year have earned a 1.96 GPA. Conference requirements can, as in the case of BYU, be superseded by school requirements. BYU requires students to have a 2.0 GPA average.

Edwards and basketball coach Al Arnold both said not requiring athletes to have at least a C average is one of the main reasons, nationally, that athletes do not graduate.

Actually, the WAC has a higher standard than a lot of the other conferences. Big Eight, the Big Ten, the West Conference or some of the other athletic conferences," Edwards said. "To me, that's where the failure is. That's where we're doing anything to the athletes — letting them go through four years of college and not come out with a legitimate education."

Most of our kids are here to get education," said Edwards. "Most (players) can handle both football and basketball at the same time. We get me who don't and the most frustrating job I have — trying to convince some of our players to accept their responsibilities toward academics. I spend more time talking to some students about their academics than I do about football."

Arnold and Edwards are on committees designed to make suggestions to the NCAA on how to improve the education of athletes and clean up recent college athletic scandals.

"I propose that they (athletes) must have no lower than a 1.75 grade point average their freshman year and take it up to a 2.0 GPA and above by their sophomore year and beyond," Arnold said. "The ironic thing is that the Ivy League schools fight it. The Yales, the Harvards and the Princetons, which are the most prestigious academic schools in the nation, fight it on the basis that their schools are so difficult it might take away a lot of eligibility from Ivy League athletes."

When athletes get over their heads academically they fall into the trap of "majoring in eligibility." Former All-WAC running back Jeff Blanc blames low eligibility requirements as part of the reason he failed to graduate.

"The problem is that the limits (requirements to stay eligible) were too low and I did just enough to stay in school and stay eligible," Blanc said. "I think people at BYU would be surprised if they knew how many times players had to take make-up classes — classes during summer school and home study — just to stay eligible."

In some respects, Edwards agrees with Blanc. "I think we can do two things to solve the problem," he said. "To have legitimate entrance requirements for college-bound students. And secondly, have a program while they're in college requiring them to be working toward graduation in order for them to stay and compete in athletics. A person can participate in the WAC and never have to have a C average for the four years if the school lets him stay in — and a lot of schools do. That's general around the country."

"They (the schools) have got to know why they're in the athletics business — is it for student-athletes to perform as athletes as well as get an education? Or to have their teams in the top twenty and make lots of money?"

to BYU Athletic Director Glen Tuckett — by the cost of tuition and room and board.

Money needed for road trips, salaries, equipment and facilities push the annual athletic department budget near the million-dollar level. Only winning programs can support such massive athletic programs.

Courtney Leishman, BYU women's basketball coach, said he left men's basketball because he didn't like the pressures.

"You've got to have fans to have money to recruit athletes to get more fans to get more money — it's just a vicious circle," Leishman said. "They (the schools) have got to know why they're in the athletics business — is it for student-athletes to perform as athletes as well as get an education? Or to have their teams in the top 20 or the top 10 every year and make lots of money?"

Edwards said that when a coach's job is on the line, the pressure to recruit athletes who can score on the football field, but not on an English exam, is tremendous.

"Anyway you look at it, whenever a coach is fired, he's fired because he hasn't been able to fill the stadium or the basketball arena," Edwards said. "It's not the athlete's fault, it's not the coach's fault, it's not necessarily the school's fault, it's just a product of something that has evolved and developed. I think there's some good coming out of the recent scandals (like the recent probation of five PAC 10 schools) and some positive steps are being taken."

Arnold has a slightly different view from Edwards, saying that athletic academic problems can be blamed on the coaching staff and having an honest coaching staff will solve a school's problem.

"I don't think all the national (NCAA) legislation in the world is going to do us as much good as a college president who says 'do it or get out to the coach,'" Arnold said.

It goes back to the head coach. Does he want to win so badly that he'll prostitute his athletes from the standpoint of academics and standards of living and lifestyles?

Record-breaking cold freezes oranges, bay

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The "strange" Siberian cold wave punishing the East stunned Florida on Tuesday with a record-killing freeze from Tallahassee to Miami that lunged oranges and froze vegetables in their fields.

Florida Power & Light Co. was forced to impose rotating 20-minute blackouts on cities along the entire peninsula as the coldest weather since the turn of the century put a strain on generating plants in many areas.

Across the Southeast, records for the coldest day ever in January fell — 7 degrees in Wilmington, N.C., 8 degrees in Tallahassee, Fla., 14 in Savannah, Ga. — while many cities of the Northeast logged new lows below zero.

The cold wave that has fishing boats frozen to their docks in New England and fuel barges ice-bound in Chesapeake Bay may have wiped out 20 percent of Florida's orange crop, the equivalent of 49 million gallons of concentrated orange juice, officials said.

Temperatures ranged from 20 to 26 degrees in most of the citrus belt of Central Florida.

In the nation's winter vegetable garden near Homestead, south of Miami, heavy losses also were reported.

Jack Hales, head forecaster for the weather service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said there was no early relief in sight. The cold is caused by a high pressure ridge over the Rockies that is blocking warm air blowing eastward from the Pacific Ocean and deflecting it northward into Canada.

At the same time, a low pressure system over the eastern part of the country is drawing in cold air from the north, all the way from Siberia and the Arctic Ocean.

Since Christmas, the arctic air has set daily records in cities throughout the eastern United States. Some cities posting subzero records Tuesday included Atlantic City, N.J., minus 6; Concord, N.H., minus 21; Hartford, Conn., minus 9; Scranton, Pa., minus 13; Wilmington, Del., minus 2.

And almost daily there are new reports of elderly people dying in the cold. On the eastern shore of Chesapeake Bay, temperatures were 30 degrees, said Franklin Green, 59, was found dead in a room in his apartment where a small stove had gone out and the temperature was 30 degrees. The cause of death was listed as hypothermia.

LDS apostle plans to meet with Reagan

President Ezra Taft Benson, president of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, has been designated by the First Presidency to represent the LDS Church at the inauguration of President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Jerry P. Cahill, director of public affairs for the church, said President Benson will attend the inaugural opening ceremony, featuring the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, at the Lincoln Memorial on Jan. 17.

According to Cahill, President Benson will also attend the inaugural gala on Jan. 19, and will have a seat of honor at the swearing-in ceremony on Capitol Hill Jan. 20.

"He will also meet privately with President Reagan that day," Cahill said. Church communication officials would not elaborate on the nature of the meeting, but said it was a private discussion.

President N. Eldon Tanner, first counselor in the First Presidency, attended the inauguration of President Carter in 1977. A church communications spokesman said it is not uncommon for church representatives to be invited to presidential inaugurations.

Mrs. Benson will accompany her husband to the nation's capital, Cahill said.

President Benson was ordained to the Quorum of the Twelve in 1943, when he was 44 years old. Previous to that time he served as the head of the National Farm Cooperative in Washington D.C. He also served on a four-man agricultural advisory committee to President Roosevelt during World War II.

In 1952 President Benson was appointed as secretary of agriculture, serving for eight years in the cabinet of President Eisenhower. President Benson returned to full-time church service in 1961.

Carter seeks treaty OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made an extraordinary, last-minute appeal to Congress on Tuesday for ratification of the SALT II treaty, his successor, Ronald Reagan, has pledged to scrap.

Carter's plea was contained in a letter transmitting the annual report of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency to Congress. Such routine transmittal letters are usually matter-of-fact and non-controversial.

But just one week before leaving office, Carter urged Congress to capitalize on "the period of relative calm that follows an election year" to work out an acceptable nuclear arms limitation agreement that the Senate will ratify.

"This is important to our own national security, and it is the strong wish of all our allies," Carter said.

Carter and Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev signed the SALT II treaty in June 1979, but it ran into strong Senate opposition, and Carter withdrew it before a vote after the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan.

Polas threaten to strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders in Rzeszow, beside the Soviet border, vowed Tuesday to hold a two-hour warning strike if the government doesn't open negotiations on their demands within 24 hours.

A spokesman for Poland's biggest independent trade union, Solidarity, said selected factories would be shut down from noon to 2 p.m. Wednesday unless negotiators arrived to talk to some 300 protesters.

He said protesters have been occupying a former government trade union building for two weeks to support a list of 60 demands including government recognition of an independent farmers' union.

Sources at Solidarity headquarters in Gdansk said the union's national leadership would meet to decide if it should support the Rzeszow action.

In Przemyśl, also on the Soviet border, workers at some 120 firms staged a one-hour warning strike Tuesday in support of the Ustyzyski Dolne protesters.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said before leaving for home that a two-hour strike would be reasonable, "but I hope they make sure their watches don't jam."

Dohn draws fine, probation

CHICAGO (AP) — Former radical leader Bernardino Dohn, who surrendered over 11 years as a fugitive, was sentenced Tuesday to three years probation and fined $1,500 on charges stemming from the 1969 Days of Rage disturbance in Chicago. The judge lectured her on nonviolent change.

Ms. Dohn, 38, had faced a maximum penalty of up to eight years in prison.

In a negotiated agreement, she withdrew her earlier plea of innocent to all charges. She instead pleaded guilty to four of those charges — two counts of aggravated battery in attacks on police officers and two counts of jumping bond after the demonstrations.

Circuit Court Judge Fred Suria denied a prosecution request to sentence Ms. Dohn to 30 days in jail in addition to the probation, saying she had already paid a penalty by giving up contact with friends and relatives by going underground.

Ms. Dohn surrendered in December after 11 years in hiding.

Goldschmidt: curb imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt called for "a new American compact" Tuesday among labor, government and manufacturers to save the domestic automobile industry. Toward that end, he declared, it is essential that Japanese imports be restricted.

Goldschmidt called Chrysler's flirtation with bankruptcy "the tip of the iceberg," and indicated other American automakers are just as imperiled "if we don't move to solve this problem."

The outgoing secretary, releasing a department report on the auto industry, said the Reagan administration should negotiate an import restraint agreement with the Japanese, who sent 1.8 million cars into the United States last year.

At the same time, Goldschmidt said, labor unions should hold down wage demands and manufacturers should establish productivity programs or other compensation for workers until the U.S. industry regains its competitive advantage.

Citizens to air concerns at neighborhood meeting

Provo citizens will have an opportunity to voice concerns to city officials during neighborhood council meetings scheduled for the next nine weeks by the Provo City Commission.

A meeting was held in 1975 to define such issues as crime prevention and the responsibilities of city officers, according to Mayor James Ferguson.

The first of five area council meetings will begin Tuesday with the central area meeting at Timpanogos School. On Jan. 27, the east area council will meet at Wasatch School. The south area meeting will be Feb. 10, at Sunset View School.

The west area council meeting is scheduled for Feb. 24, at Westridge School. The north area meeting will be at Timpiwiew High on March 10.

Renee Nolan, east area council representative, said people in each area can give their neighborhood chairman questions they want answered.

"This should be done a week before the meetings so council members can prepare answers," she said.

Mrs. Nolan said that some topics to be discussed are BYU's stadium expansion, sewer drainage, the Heritage Mountain project, and traffic problems.

Rep. Karl Snow, R-Provo, said the governor had some good suggestions, but left the majority of the funding problems up to the legislators.

"He pretty much threw the budget in our laps," Snow said.

If the legislators forego the tax rebate, scheduled to go into effect during the 1981 calendar year, and pass all the other tax increases the governor proposed, the state will have a $112 million increase in state revenues.

Republicans on Capitol Hill said the governor did a better job of addressing the problems than the answers.

Tax charges help, hurt

By CHRIS JONES
Universe Staff Writer

It's no secret. Rarely does a year go by without changes in the federal tax laws, and 1981 is no exception.

Some of the changes this year will actually help student taxpayers. Other new laws will only add to students' financial woes. Here are the highlights.

The New Interest/Dividend Exclusion — Beginning in 1981 (not for the 1980 tax year), taxpayers will be able to exclude from income the first $200 of combined interest and dividends received during the year.

For married couples, the exclusion is $400 and it doesn't matter what the interest or dividend income is.

What kind of interest and dividends qualify under this new tax law? The exclusion applies to interest earned from banks, savings and loans, thrifts, credit unions and certain money market mutual funds.

With respect to dividends, taxpayers can exclude those received from American corporations.

This new law will be beneficial to those students who have savings. A short word of caution: this law applies only to 1981.

For the 1980 tax year, taxpayers will have to include all interest income on their returns. However, under an existing law, the first $100 of dividends per taxpayer may be excluded on the 1980 return.

Standard Mileage Rate Increase — For those who use their cars for business purposes, the Internal Revenue Service has raised the tax deduction to 20 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and 11 cents a mile thereafter.

Business mileage includes unreimbursed miles driven by individuals for their employers and the many miles outside salespeople accumulate. It's important to remember the deduction for business mileage.

Daily Universe photographers Carry Bryant and Robert Harries have been making names for themselves in the Associated Press photo department in Los Angeles during the past week.

Harries' picture of the BYU student who fell four floors in an elevator shaft during the recent blackout was transmitted over the A.P. Laserphoto Wire Service to both Los Angeles and New York City. The photo was also aired on the 10 p.m. KSL News.

Bryant, who shot the pictures of the parachute accident published in Monday's Daily Universe, was contacted Tuesday by the L.A. Bureau of the Associated Press and informed that his photo ran on the front page of the L.A. Times.

The bureau also said the photo was picked up by the New York

Social Security Taxes Take A Hike — Anyone who has received his first paycheck of the year has probably already noticed it — Social Security taxes have gone up. Again.

The new tax rate has jumped from 6.13 percent to 6.65 percent for 1981. That's a little more than a half percent more than the new pay maximum of $29,700 is reached.

For those individuals making the maximum, that is an increase of $387 more than last year.

If so, the reduction in income tax should partially offset the new Social Security tax increases.

Both the new 20-cent and nine-cent rates are retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980, meaning taxpayers can take advantage of the change on their 1980 tax returns.

For some individuals, the new 20-cent allowance may not cover all driving costs. In this case, the IRS will allow the taxpayer to deduct actual expenses as long as good records exist to support the claim.

Deductible costs include gas, oil, repairs and maintenance, depreciation, parking fees and tolls, car insurance, license and inspection fees and even the cost to wash and wax the car.

If the car is used for both business and personal driving, only the percentage of costs applicable to business use can be deducted.

For those taxpayers who itemize deductions, the IRS allowance for deductible charity and medical driving has risen to nine cents a mile.

"I have been trying the whole week to get something that would go A.P., but nothing had worked out," said Bryant. "When I got the shot of the paratroopers colliding I knew this was the one, but I didn't think it would go this big."

those who are self-employed. Social Security taxes for the person working for himself have gone from 8.1 percent to 9.3 percent, making a maximum tax increase of $654.

Though the federal government may apply to take away more from it in 1981, there's some hope.

President-elect Ronald Reagan has pledged to make sizable tax cuts to offset the new Social Security tax increases.

Parking lot addition underway

By SHANNON STARKS
Universe Staff Writer

More student parking will soon be available in a lot near the Smith Fieldhouse tennis courts. Construction is under way to enlarge Y parking lot 34, located on the corner of 150 East and 800 North, said Lt. Mike Harroun of BYU Security Police.

The lot was scheduled to be finished by now, but because of bad weather the completion date was changed.

"We've already done the preliminary work and have taken out the grass," explained Harroun. "They got a late start and the weather is holding them up."

Harroun said Lot 33, at 800 North and 400 East, is now definitely in the plans for parking expansion, but the planning and design hasn't decided when the houses on the lot will be torn down. The N. Eldon Tanner Building parking lot will also provide more space for Y parking.

By Tuesday afternoon, approximately 800 Y stickers and 60 G stickers had been sold for the semester, said Paul Bringham, parking services supervisor. The ratio of G stickers to G parking spaces is still about two to one. He said the ratio of stickers sold is based on the number of the lots. If students aren't using them, more stickers are sold.

Bringham said he was surprised at the number of people who have adopted carpooling. Forty-six stalls were first opened to carpoolers, but when they sold out, the space was doubled. Depending on usage, more spaces may be added, he said.

Quite a few students still don't know their parking stickers obtained during fall semester will last through August, said Bringham.

A few students came to the traffic office and bought new stickers when they already had them.

The office workers had to start asking students if they already had a sticker, and those who had bought two were reimbursed.

Harroun said he is pleased with the new parking system, although there are still a few problems.

"It's kind of like a new car," he said. "When

He suggested raising the corporate franchise tax 1.5 percent, a move that would generate $15 million in revenue and lower the levy two mills.

At the end of his message, Matheson again strongly urged the legislators to terminate or indefinitely postpone the property tax rebate program.

Adjustments needed

By AUDREY GASKING
Asst. News Editor

Julie was 10 years old when her widowed father married Ann. Julie's mother had died three years ago and during that time she had experienced grief and sadness. She had also formed a strong bond with her father as they shared their fears and troubles.

When her father met Ann, Julie thought a new mother might be nice, but as time went on, the situation proved to be less than ideal. Jealousy, insecurity and anger were emotions experienced by each person involved. While there were rewards, there were also problems.

Although this situation was fictitious, it helps illustrate that stepfamilies are an increasing phenomenon in today's family. With the increasing divorce rate comes an increase in the remarriage rate, and in turn, a larger number of reconstituted families.

Natural parents

The population reference bureau reported in 1977 that 33 percent of children under 18 did not live with both their natural parents. One percent lived with their fathers only, 16 percent lived with their mothers only, three percent lived with both parents, and 13 percent lived with two parents, one of which was not a natural parent.

BYU's Family Therapy Program has undertaken a research project to test specific ways of helping stepfamilies. Research is being done by two marriage and family therapists and professors, Dr. Margaret Hoopes and Dr. James Harper, and two research assistants, Marcia Stroup and Deborah Hunt.

The researchers hope the project will raise the consciousness of society to the situation involving stepfamilies.

"Often stepfamilies hesitate to discuss their problems openly," Mrs. Stroup said. "Society avoids the subject because of the unpleasantness associated with death and divorce. Members of stepfamilies seldom have the chance to share their problems with others."

Stepfamilies are trying hard to succeed and remedy past failures, she explained, and therefore hesitate to acknowledge problems exist.

Mrs. Stroup said the stepfamilies' adjustment is further complicated by myths surrounding the stepfamily.

No instant love

"There is the myth of instant love," she said. "Stepfamilies think they can immediately love each other. This usually is not realistic."

A stepparent or child is virtually a stranger, Mrs. Stroup said, and has not built a close and trusting relationship with new family members.

The theory that stepfamilies adjust more easily when a death is responsible for the first nuclear family's dissolution rather than a divorce is also a myth, Mrs. Stroup said.

"When a parent dies he is often made more virtuous in his children's eyes than he actually may have been," she said. "The stepparent has to compete with a glorified image, a saint."

Problems within families vary with complexity of the situation, said Ms. Hoopes, a therapist on the project.

"A child has to face a new situation with many confusing aspects," she said. "A new family is put together with new ideas and new personalities."

"A child may find himself with as many as four sets of grandparents as well as stepparents and uncles, stepbrothers and sisters and often half-brothers and sisters," Ms. Hoopes said. "The child finds himself adjusting to a new family position and situation."

Financial support

Ms. Hoopes said financial complexities also effect the family.

"Often a man has two families to support, the one produced by his first marriage and his new one," she said. "Usually both parents in a stepfamily must work in order to support their family. This adds to the adjustment problems."

Ms. Hoopes said the project is being undertaken to help stepfamilies meet and discuss their problems together.

"We're testing group treatment to see how effective it is," she said. "The families will work with counselors and other stepfamilies to solve their problems."

Groups of stepfamilies will meet for 10 consecutive weeks at the BYU Comprehensive Clinic building.

Surrogate parents discussed

By MARC ENGGAAS
Universe Staff Writer

Academic study of the ethics of surrogate parenthood helps people face these issues in life, said Dr. Lester Allen, dean of the College of Agricultural and Biological Sciences.

In a lecture attended by 300 biologists and agricultural science students, faculty members and church leaders on Jan. 8, Allen asked, "Since all knowledge comes from the Lord, how should we integrate revelation, judgment, and technology?"

The audience answered by responding to 10 hypothetical childbirth cases Allen called "the parable of the 10 virgins."

Audience reaction was mixed as to whether a rape victim should raise her child alone or put it up for adoption. The audience rejected the idea of a rape victim giving her child to her unmarried 32-year-old sister to raise.

Sect charged in slaying; several children missing

POPLAR, Mont. (AP) — The entire membership of a religious sect faced charges Tuesday of murdering a 4-year-old boy, Sheriff's deputies were searching for at least five young girls who they said were kept at the sect leader's home.

Physical and emotional abuse of children is a part of the philosophy of the religious group, called the River of Life Tabernacle Church, Roosevelt County Attorney James McCann alleged in the murder charge.

The group moved to the Poplar area within the past three weeks from Wapato, Wash., McCann said. The children were being kept in a communal arrangement, with girls housed in the trailer home of the group's leader, James Delorme, 44, in

They favored artificial insemination by a woman's husband, but rejected artificial insemination by a donor outside of the marriage.

One student commented, "It sounds like artificial adultery."

The audience was unfavorable toward a uterus transplant for a woman who could not have children, questioning whose body the baby would really be from.

The audience rejected the idea of artificial insemination by a woman by a donor who is her husband's brother, and the implantation of a married sister's fertilized egg in the uterus of her unmarried sister.

Audience reaction was mixed about test tube babies and artificial plastic babies for women who cannot have children.

Concerning surrogate mothers, Allen said,

Point under bonds of $200,000 each.

Three adult members of the group beat the Gill boy at least three times during the day Friday, apparently chiefly because he would not eat, Sheriff Don Carpenter said. The beatings involved an electrical cord, a belt "and, we believe, other things," McCann said.

McCann said the three who allegedly beat the boy included the boy's father, Crady Gill, 24, Daniel Powers, 29, at whose home the boys were being kept, and Robert Steel Pool, 23.

All nine members of the group, including the dead boy's parents, were charged Monday with deliberate homicide in the boy's death. They were held in the county jail at Wolf it may help to set the stage for real-life problems."

"These women are making 'big money' doing this," A surrogate gets about $10,000 for bearing a child. One student reasoned, though, "At 24 hours a day for nine months she's not making any money."

The surrogate actually makes slightly more than $1.50 per hour.

Allen's purpose in the lecture was "to encourage and strengthen our bioethical problem-solving ability," in the gospel context.

"Emerging technology raises unforeseen questions," regarding rights and obligations," he said, using the examples cited to illustrate this concept.

"In the absence of direct, applicable revelation we seek answers to these questions," he said.

"Preliminary study in the academic setting may not provide answers," Allen said, "but

BYU presents 'Coppelia'

"Coppelia," a story ballet considered to be a favorite of audiences all over the world, will be presented for the first time in Utah Valley at the deJong Concert Hall.

The ballet has been choreographed by the three directors of the BYU Theater Ballet, Sandra Birch Allen, Connie B. Freese and Deryll Yeager, all formerly professional dancers with Ballet West.

Alternating in the role of Swanilda will be Pamela Lindsay, formerly with the San Francisco Ballet, and Gladysue Stocking, formerly of John Clifford's Los Angeles Ballet Company.

Both female leads of the ballet trained in California. Miss Stocking began to seriously study ballet at age 12 with a Ford Foundation Scholarship. She started performing with the Los Angeles Ballet at age 14, and remained there until she came to BYU.

Miss Lindsay began to study ballet at age 11. A year later, she received a Ford Foundation Scholarship. She started performing in the annual production of the "Nutcracker" with the San Francisco Ballet Company, and appeared in several other productions there.

Sam Freese will portray Coppelius, the dollmaker, and David Hardy, formerly of the Abilene Metropolitan Ballet Company, will be Franz.

David Hardy, a high school all-American gymnast, began dancing in Abilene, Texas, with the Abilene Metropolitan Ballet Company. He began dancing steadily in the fall of 1979 when he came to BYU on a gymnastics scholarship.

"Coppelia" was originally choreographed by Arthur Saint-Leon with music by Leo Delibes for the Paris Opera in 1870.

The ballet takes place in a small Bavarian village, where dollmaker Coppelius crafts a doll so lifelike that she is mistaken for a real person. The story revolves around this confusion and its effects on the romance of Swanilda and Franz.

Tickets for the "Coppelia" went on sale Monday for the Jan. 22, 23 and 24 evening performances at 8 p.m., and the 2 p.m. matinee Jan. 24 at the deJong Concert Hall.

VOICE PROBLEMS

Does your voice bother you? Does it tire easily? Is it an effort to talk? After a normal day's use does the sound of your voice change or does it sometimes fade out? Do your friends ever comment on your having an unusual voice? Do you experience mild pain or discomfort in your throat when you talk? These are some of the symptoms of voice problems that afflict about six percent of the adult population.

Persistent misuse of the voice may create abnormal growths on the vocal cords similar to callouses on hands or corns on toes. Improper use of the voice may also cause ulcers on the vocal cords. These and other voice disorders can often be corrected with voice therapy.

Help is available for BYU students having difficulties with voice and other speech problems. Services may be obtained in the new Comprehensive Clinic Building (CCB) on the edge of campus just east of the Law Building. If you wish to inquire about voice therapy please contact Dr. Newman in Room 135 or 136 in the CCB.

Puppet draws laughs, stares

When Robin Bemis, a graduate student from Upland, Calif., walked around campus yesterday, he did not feel like one number in 28,000. Bemis, who plans to become a pre-school teacher, took his $20 puppet to CDFR 420 for his 3- to 5-year-old students and ended up entertaining as well as worrying his peers.

"I walked into McDonald's restaurant for a hamburger and the manager saw me and came over and said, 'I am sorry but we don't allow pets here. You will have to leave.' Then he stopped and his mouth dropped when he realized I had a puppet wrapped around me."

As for the response of Y students, Bemis said, "They try to not show it but they have the same reactions as the little kids when they see me." And since the young students liked the man's puppets so well, Bemis said the Y will have many other chances this semester to stare at one student that stands out in a crowd.

TV readers audition today

Auditions will be taken today at 9:30 a.m. for narrators on the program "Storyland."

Prospects are asked to bring a prepared short reading and be ready to read a children's story at that time. Auditions will be taken in Studio 2, 424A HFA. The production of this half-hour children's program starts this week. The program will be shown on CCTV, BYU Cable 8 or Provo Cable 24. Those who audition can expect call backs

Thursday.

Y Cougars climb to 13th, 15th in polls

The Cougars' double victories last weekend and losses by other ranked teams boosted BYU to the 13th and 15th spots in the United Press International and Associated Press basketball polls.

The 12-3 Cougars were ranked 17th in both polls last week.

The Cougars' upward trend started two weeks ago when the Nevada-Las Vegas game was broadcast live in California and on a delayed basis nationally on ESPN.

"Exposure is that important," said head coach Frank Arnold, who votes on the UPI coaches' poll. "Every week I receive a list on how the Top 20 fared in the polls and have to judge from that."

Arnold says most coaches who vote around the country face the same problem he does. He said because he has seen only the 14 teams BYU has played, Utah and about four teams on national TV, his decision has to depend on whom they play, their talent and quality of coaching.

"There are probably 30-35 teams comparable to those in the Top 20," the six-year mentor said. "The University of Utah is not far behind the Cougars, ranking 15th in the UPI poll and 16th in the AP poll."

Oregon State, with a 12-0 record, edged Virginia for the No. 1 position in both polls after DePaul suffered a loss to Old Dominion 63-62. DePaul is now third in UPI and fourth in AP.

Gymnasts fall to Utah State

Eleven critical falls cost BYU's women's gymnastics team a dual meet with Utah State University at Logan Monday night.

In the final tally, the Cougars were behind the Aggies 136.55 to 139.25.

The latest National Statistical Service for Gymnastics ranks BYU 7th and Utah State 12th.

New name plays old style

By PATRICK GEDDES
Universe Staff Writer

The former Jackie Beene may not have the same last name she had when she played the UNLV two years ago, but the Rebels should remember her style.

Miss Beene was married last August and is now Jackie McBride. Luckily for the 6-1 BYU basketball player, she met someone 6-3 who enjoys athletics as much as she does.

All-American center Tina Gunn led the team as high scorer for three years, and she left a large hole when she graduated last year. This year, the Cougars have turned to McBride to bolster their scoring attack, and she is responding by averaging more than 22 points and nearly eight rebounds a game to lead the squad. This year, she has scored more than 30 points in three straight games and more than 20 in five straight games to pace the Cougars.

McBride plays both guard and forward, depending on who is guarding her.

"If I play guard I usually get someone smaller guarding me," she said, "so I can go more one on one," she said.

McBride will play zone against the Cougars. "Nevada-Las Vegas plays a very physical game," she said the recent bride. "If they play a zone against us we'll probably go with a taller line-up," she added.

When asked if her marriage has changed her career plans or goals she said that she really wanted to be a good wife and mother more than anything else.

"I really don't consider going pro or anything like that," she said, "it's just not worth it."

Jackie said she decided to go to BYU while still in high school. "We came to a tournament here while I was in high school and I was really impressed with the organization. Everything was well planned and we were treated great."

"I was recruited by every major school in Utah but BYU impressed me most."

This will be Jackie's third year with the women's team and looks to be her best. Last year, most of the Cougars' opponents tried to stop Gunn, the leading scorer in the nation, leaving other players open for shots. This year, each player has had to work for every point and Jackie is no exception.

In the past three years, the Cougars depended on the play of 6-5 All-American Tina Gunn to control the game. This year, McBride has been the workhorse leading the Cougars to a current 7-6 record.

UCLA next opponent

Experience aids Y spikers

BYU knows how to play volleyball. The nationally-ranked men's team returns a full squad packed with national and international experience, and BYU will put that experience against No. 1 UCLA Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

BYU is ranked third by the United States Volleyball Association (USVA). As an extramural club, BYU is not included in the NCAA. However, this gives more depth and experience to the Cougars because they can use players who have completed their four years of eligibility.

The Cougars are coming off one of their best starts in more than three years, with a first-place finish at the USVA Friendship Tournament in Santa Barbara, Calif., and a third-place finish at the annual Christmas Holiday Classic in Northridge, Calif. (Only two of the starting six players made the trip to California.)

That starting lineup for the Cougars has changed little from the squad that paced BYU to a fourth-place finish at the national championships last year in Portland, Ore.

At the setter position is three-year man Matt McShane, who also started at the same position at UC Santa Barbara. Darrell and Dave Richards, former members of the USA National Volleyball team, will anchor the outside hitter positions.

From the Iranian National Volleyball team comes outside hitter Mahallah Farokmanesh, who has traveled and competed throughout the world in almost every national volleyball tournament. Dave Sandberg, a three-year member of the BYU varsity squad, and Bryant Carpenter, a 6-foot-6 center blocker who also played on the USA National Volleyball Team for several years, are the other two starters.

Mike McLean takes the coaching reins from former coach Carl McCown who is now the faculty adviser. McLean was a reserve setter on last year's squad and has played on the USA National Team.

"I firmly believe that BYU can win the national championships this year," said McLean. "With all the top professional players that are coming back this year, we will very definitely be a contender for the national championship this year."

The UCLA match is expected to draw the largest crowd to ever see an athletic event in the Smith Fieldhouse since the opening of the Marriott Center more than five years ago. The previous record was 3,760, set last Feb. 27 when BYU defeated the University of Southern California in a five-set volleyball match.

Women to join NCAA ranks

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The NCAA assimilated women's athletics in a historic move Tuesday, bringing females into its governing structure and voting to have women's championships.

Tuesday morning, after a long and heated debate, a package of proposals termed "governance" was adopted that will place women in the upper levels of NCAA management.

But the most bizarre event came later, when Division I delegates voted to sponsor women's championships after first defeating the proposal by a one-vote margin.

Ironically, the motion to reconsider was made by Bob Steidel, faculty representative from Cal-Berkeley, who first voted against it and apparently was seeking to insure its defeat.

3 quit Weber squad

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Three Weber State College basketball players who "constituted the bulk of Weber's bench strength" have withdrawn from the team, Coach Neil McCarthy announced Monday.

The departures were just the latest in a series of setbacks that have hampered the Wildcats this season. The defending Big Sky Conference champions, nationally ranked part of last season, are 4-11 this year and 1-1 in conference play.

The three players are 6-4 forward Kent Smith, a junior from Flint, Mich.; 6-1 guard Lewis Griffin, a junior from Baltimore, Md.; and 6-7 center Doug Harris, a junior from Berkeley, Calif., McCarthy said.

The coach said the reason given by the three was that they were disenchanted with their positions on the team and the amount of playing time they were receiving.

Brad Larsen, Weber sports information director, said all three were junior college transfers who were on athletic scholarships.

Cagers to host Rebels

After winning consolation honors in two tournaments, the BYU women's basketball team hosts Nevada-Las Vegas tonight at 7:30 in the Marriott Center and travels to play New Mexico and UTEP for the opening of the conference season.

BYU's last two games against the Nevada-Las Vegas Rebels, both during the 1978-79 season, were memorable games. On Feb. 27, 1979, BYU defeated UNLV in an exciting 103-94 overtime game at home. One month before that, on Jan. 27, UNLV beat the Cougars 98-90 with former BYU center Tina Gunn scoring 56 points to set a school record.

UNLV has a 5-2 record with four players averaging in double figures. Kathy Wicks is in the top 20 in the nation for scoring with an average of 21.3. Kathie Calloway paces her team in rebounds with 14.8, enough to put her in the top five in the nation.

Jackie McBride leads the BYU team in scoring and rebounds, with 22.5 points and 7.8 rebounds a game. Forward Jenny Cox is second in both scoring and rebounding with 14.5 points and 7.3 rebounds.
